To whom it may concern:

This is a letter of recommendation for Andrey Smushko. I have had the pleasure of teaching Andrey, in our Project Lead the Way Biomedical Program, at Antelope High School, in Antelope, California. This program consists of four classes, with a capstone, and a potential internship. The Biomedical Science Program is a rigorous college preparatory career tech program; designed for students interested in pursuing careers in the medical and health sciences. All courses are A-G approved college preparatory lab science courses and a part of the Medical and Health Sciences Career Technology Sector.

Andrey is currently in Biomedical Innovation, the fourth and final capstone course, in the biomedical pathway. Andrey is currently working collaboratively on an app to reduce wait time in the pediatricians office. Andrey is one of the most intelligent, inquisitive, trustworthy and driven students I have had the pleasure to teach in the last 21 years. Andrey excels in problem solving and creativity. His ability to blend his knowledge of coding and computer science with his health science projects is unrivaled by any other students in our program. Andrey displays excellent verbal and written communication skills and creates and delivers technical information to her peers and teachers. The capstone project will be presented to industry leaders and students in our community.

In addition to Andrey's classwork, he is a member of the antelope wrestling team, peer tutoring and a TA for the science department. Andrey has excellent leadership and time management skills. He is always willing to assist his teammates and teachers when needed. He has an uncanny ability to quickly synthesize and apply information. Without hesitation, Andrey would be an excellent candidate to add to your student body. Please feel free to contact me with any questions.

Sincerely,

Mathew Tozzi
