To whom it may concern,

I am writing this recommendation letter on behalf of Lucas Bowman who I had the pleasure of having in NURS193: Foundations Didactic and NURS3813: Pharmacology.

Lucas' academic dedication is exceptional. His rigorous performance has consistently earned him recognition, including placement on the Dean's List and academic honors in his previous degree. He is always engaged, actively participates in class, and brings valuable insight to our discussions on complex clinical topics.

Beyond his grades, Lucas' professional conduct sets him apart as a natural leader. He is exceedingly well-spoken, carries himself with impressive maturity, and serves as a highly respected leader among his peers, often taking the initiative in group projects and study sessions.

What further demonstrates Lucas' commitment to his future career is the significant practical and professional experience he has already accumulated. His prior experience as a Patient Care Assistant at MD Anderson has provided him with hands-on exposure to acute care environments, advanced patient needs, and multidisciplinary collaboration long before completing his clinical rotations. This experience has cultivated a high level of comfort and competence in patient interactions and care delivery.

Lastly, his service in the United States Navy has instilled a powerful set of core values that are essential in the nursing profession: discipline, accountability, critical thinking under pressure, and teamwork. He conducts himself with the highest standards of integrity and commitment in every academic and clinical setting.

Please give Lucas consideration for this scholarship because his commitment to his studies deserve merit.

Please contact me at fvillanueva@twu.edu if further information is required for his application.

Sincerely,
