

1. Puppy

Watercolor and Colored Pencil

16x12 inches

This work reflects on the transition from childhood to adulthood through the lens of personal experiences. It depicts my beloved childhood stuffed animal, Puppy, dissected to reveal not organs, but toys and objects that shaped my early identity.

2. Growing Pains

Colored Pencil on Watercolor paper
9x13 inches

This piece depicts a large figure in my childhood bedroom, caught between my mom's and dad's houses. The separation between the rooms serves as a visual metaphor for the emotional distance created by divorce, while the piece as a whole is connected through consistent themes of transition, loss, and the uneasy process of outgrowing one's childhood environment.

5. The Huntress

Crochet Tapestry

21 x 31 inches

Based on a vintage cross-stitch pattern, this tapestry is hand-crafted with over 11,000 individual stitches, depicting a scene with the Roman goddess Diana the Huntress.

6. The Mourning Dove

Watercolor and Colored Pencil

13x9 inches

This piece portrays a fallen bird, with wings outstretched, surrounded by a crown of burning birthday candles. It captures my fear of aging, and the quiet, uneasy resentment that surfaces each year as I blow out the candles.
