To whom it may concern:

I am honored to write of letter of recommendation for Jessica (Jessie) Crockett. I served as her Girl Scout troop leader for the entirety of elementary school and continue to see her regularly through school and community activities. Jessie was always a leader within our troop. She works well in a group, is exceptional at motivating others, and maintains her composure under pressure. People are drawn to her vivacious, warm nature. Additionally, she excels at delivering honest truths to others without judgment. These characteristics have earned her the respect of peers.

Warren Buffett once stated, "You don't have to be smarter than the rest; you have to be more disciplined than the rest." Discipline is one of Jessie's strong points. She consistently sets and achieves goals. Her discipline has lead her to be a top achiever in her Girl Scout Troop and to plan and execute volunteer projects in the community. As the oldest child in a single parent family, Jessie has had a great deal of responsibility at home since a young age. Yet she manages to balance school work, extracurricular activities, volunteering, church activities, and friendships.

In short, I have seen Jessie Crockett grow into a thoughtful young woman who is passionate about serving others and setting a good example. Her character is beyond reproach. I look forward to watching her excel as a college student.

Sincerely,
Nikki Wood
